having gained unique access to california prisoners and corrections officials and to thousands of prisoners written grievances and institutional responses kitty calavita and valerie jenness take us inside one of the most significant yet largely invisible institutions in the united states drawing on sometimes startlingly candid interviews with prisoners and prison staff as well as on official records the authors walk us through the byzantine grievance process which begins with prisoners filing claims and ends after four levels of review with corrections officials usually denying requests for remedies appealing to justice is both an unprecedented study of disputing in an extremely asymmetrical setting and a rare glimpse of daily life inside this most closed of institutions quoting extensively from their interviews with prisoners and officials the authors give voice to those who are almost never heard from these voices unsettle conventional wisdoms within the sociological literature for example about the reluctance of vulnerable and or stigmatized populations to name injuries and file claims and about the relentlessly adversarial subjectivities of prisoners and correctional officials and they do so with striking poignancy ultimately appealing to justice reveals a system fraught with impediments and dilemmas which delivers neither justice nor efficiency nor constitutional conditions of confinement this volume offers a diverse set of scholarly essays on the imaginative potential of corrections and sentencing research practice that centers on the lived experience of the criminal legal system the editors define lived experience broadly encompassing the subjective ways in which corrections and sentencing directly or indirectly affect a person s daily life they employ a diverse and expansive conceptualization of lived experience for example people with lived experience can be directly involved in writing or conducting the research or may be indirectly involved where the submission is about a program that includes people with lived experience in its operations e g credible messengers the volume includes 60 chapters written by academics practitioners and lived experts who are currently or formerly system impacted chapters include short reflection essays on the meaning of lived experience state of the knowledge reviews on topics related to lived experience and more traditional empirical entries that highlight specific dimensions of lived experience this groundbreaking and thought provoking handbook will appeal to academics practitioners policymakers advocates and students seeking to understand the many ways in which corrections and sentencing directly or indirectly affect a person s daily life this is volume 10 of the asc division on corrections and sentencing handbook series the handbooks provide in depth coverage of topical issues around sentencing and corrections for scholars students practitioners and policymakers this book covers research design and methodology from a unique and engaging point of view based on accounts from influential researchers across the field of criminology and criminal justice most books and articles about research in criminology and criminal justice focus on how the research was carried out the data that were used the methods that were applied the results that were achieved while these are all important they do not present a complete picture envisioning criminology researchers on research as a process of discovery aims to fill that gap by providing nuance the back story of why researchers selected particular problems how they approached those problems and how their background training and experience affected the approaches they took as the contributions in this book demonstrate research is not a cut and dried process as all too many methods books imply but a living breathing and in some ways quirky process that is influenced by non scientific factors the path taken by a researcher is important and an appreciation of his or her background experience knowledge and the setbacks and triumphs of performing the research provides a much more complete picture of how research is done the twenty eight chapters in this book describe the back stories of their authors which serve to enlighten readers about the interplay between the personal and the methodological while primarily aimed as a textbook this work will also be of interest to researchers in criminology and criminal justice and related social and behavioral science fields as an account of how seminal researchers in the field developed their key contributions
